"I dedicate the creation of art to the divine energy, where the essence of creation embodies the wisdom of women.
Like the play of beauty and the brilliance of the moon, art flourishes under the nurturing gaze of every form."

: Explanation :

This shloka is a dedication to ShaktiSrijan, acknowledging the divine feminine energy that inspires the creation of art. It emphasizes that the act of artistic creation is a manifestation of the wisdom and creative power inherent in women. The shloka compares the beauty and brilliance of artistic expression to the enchanting play of beauty and the radiant glow of the moon. The verse expresses the idea that the nurturing influence of women enhances and enriches the entire realm of art.

For me, creating is like meditating - it keeps me centered! As a child, I always enjoyed creating things ranging from household decorative pieces to embroidery. But I had never imagined that a sprouting childhood hobby would develop into my career as an artist. The process of making portraits, composing paintings and landscapes engaged me and inspired me to create and experiment. I like to call myself a portrait artist. To my eyes, portraits are more than just people - shoes on streets and locks on the door also qualify as portraits in my creative mind. These portraits of people, objects, and animals give me the freedom to express the mundane world as I see it and paint it with all the colors I want.

RAJASTHAN

As a scientist by profession and an artist by passion, I find solace and inspiration in the realm of abstract art, with a particular focus on portraying the essence of womanhood. Through my artwork, I aim to explore the intricacies of femininity, celebrating its diversity and strength. Each stroke of color and every abstract form I create serves as a reflection of my admiration for the beauty and resilience of women. Guided by an intuitive process, I strive to evoke emotions and provoke thought, inviting viewers to contemplate the layers of meaning within my creations. My journey as an artist is a harmonious balance between the precision of science and the boundless creativity of art, allowing me to express my reverence for both disciplines in a unique and captivating way.

I am Shambhavi, A 2nd year student at Jindal Global University pursuing B.A. English (H), JSLL. I love to perform Resin Art and also make jewellery and fashion designs. I create resin products and sell them online. I started with jewellery designs when I was eight, fashion at fourteen and resin at the last at eighteen. Thus, you can call me an aspiring artist in the making! I love playing with colours on the resin board and prefer to mix and match to invent and discover new aesthetic combinations. Hope you will enjoy looking at the paintings I created.

I am a sketch artist.. pencil and charcoal being my medium of expression. Creating realistic image aided with the magical display of light and shadow has been my constant endeavour. To reach many has been my ultimate desire and the reviews that I collect therefrom would equip me to do more of such works, more of different subjects or themes and providing more clarity to the art that i create. As an artist each tale tells a story . Whether its readable by the viewer sets the prime goal apart from the skill and hard work put into it. Its a small battle that is fought inside but won outside with the viewers
